

TOUCHING CEREMONIES.

Dedication of the Monument at Nancy Hank's Grave—Distinguished Guests.

A dispatch from Lincoln City, Ind., under date of October 1, says: The dedication to-day of the monument erected at the grave of Abraham Lincoln's mother attracted a large attendance of visitors from Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and other States. Special trains brought Gov. Durbill and staff from Indianapolis and special parties from Louisville, Evansville and other places. The ceremonies were held on the hill immediately across from the place where stood the cabin in which the Lincoln family lived and where Mrs. Lincoln died.

The distinguished visitors upon their arrival, were met by a reception committee consisting of a small number of aged citizens who were intimate friends of Abraham Lincoln when he lived in this vicinity. The dedicatory exercises were of an extremely impressive character. Col. J. S. Wright, of Rockport, presided. The exercises began with an invocation by the Rev. D. J. Ryan, following which Col. Wright introduced Gen. John C. Black, of Chicago, who delivered the oration of the day. Brief addresses appropriate to the occasion were delivered by Gov. Durbill and other distinguished men. Before the exercises concluded a letter was read from Robert T. Lincoln in which he expressed regret at his inability to be present. The music portion of the dedicatory program was furnished by the band of Knights-town Soldiers' and Soldiers' Home.

The dedication of the monument was conducted by the Nancy Hanks Memorial Association, which is composed of Gov. Durbill and other prominent citizens of Indiana. The first monument was placed over the grave of Nancy Hanks some time in 1830. For more than sixty years the resting place of the mother of the martyred President was unmarked. It was surrounded by wild wood and underbrush. In 1880, however, a plain, marble slab, on which was inscribed "To the mother of our martyred President, erected by a friend," was brought to this place. The donor was never known, though it was commonly supposed that the gift came from Clem Studebaker, the South Bend manufacturer.

When the old monument to President Lincoln, at Springfield, Ill., was replaced by a new one the contractor presented the base of the old one to Spencer county to be used as a monument for the grave of Nancy Hanks. It was this monument that was unveiled to-day. The stone stands in a desolate, unimproved tract, but a fund has been raised for the purpose of clearing away the underbrush, and it is hoped soon to have the monument surrounded by a well-kept park of sixteen acres.

A Word to Travelers.
The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhea, and for this reason one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.
Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.
All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. If the kidneys are weak, the blood is impure, and the body is diseased. The kidneys are the blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are weak or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble. Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is overworking in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. It is used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be treated by the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble. If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Home of Swamp-Root, free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Next Morning Philosopher.
Fault finders are never out of a job. The latest lat is generally the most absurd. No man has a monopoly of patriotism, no matter what he claims. Old Gov. Tracy must have been a thoroughbred. At least he "painted" a moral. The appetite has as much to do with the excellence of a dinner as the cook. A man may even be too unreliable to be utilized as a warning example. The "four hundred" may be less or more than that number. It all depends on who does the counting. All men and women are good—some being merely good, others good for something, and the remainder good for nothing. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hard on the Girls.
One of Mark Twain's biggest jokes was played on his daughters, and at Elmira it still stands as much of a joke as when it was first perpetrated. Early in his literary career Mr. Clemens made his home in Elmira, and it was in that city that his daughters were born. No father was ever more proud of similar events, and Mr. Clemens decided that they should be commemorated in a lasting and substantial way. So he erected handsome stone water towers, costing several hundred dollars each, in the vicinity of his pretty summer home, Quarry Farm, and named each after a daughter, the name and date of birth being artistically cut in front of the towers in letters six inches high. When the Misses Clemens were

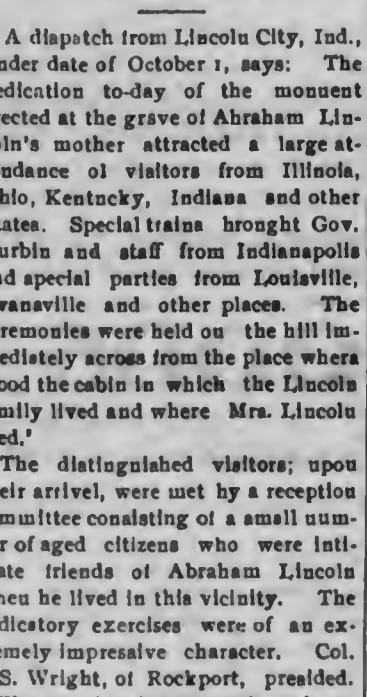

Henry Clay.
The Great Kentucky Orator and Lawyer as an Actor.
A well-known traveler of Chicago tells an interesting story in the Courier-Journal about Henry Clay, the great Kentucky statesman, then a well known lawyer, as follows: A man was once being tried for murder, and his case looked hopeless. He had, without any seeming provocation, murdered a neighbor in cold blood. Not a lawyer in the country would take the case. It looked bad enough to ruin the reputation of any lawyer. The man, as a last extremity, appealed to Clay to take the case for him. Every one thought that Clay would certainly refuse. But when the celebrated lawyer looked into the matter his fighting blood was roused, and to the great surprise of all, he accepted. Then came a trial, the like of which was never seen. Clay slowly carried on the case, and it looked more and more hopeless. The only ground of defense the prisoner had was that the murdered man had looked at him with such a fierce, murderous look that out of self defense he had struck first. A ripple passed through the jury at this evidence. The time came for Clay to make his defense. It was settled in the minds of the spectators that the man was guilty of murder in the first degree. Clay proceeded, laid all the proof before them in a masterly way. Then, just as he was about to conclude, he played his last master card. "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, assuming the fiercest, blackest look and carrying the most undying hatred in it that I had ever seen, "gentlemen if a man should look at you like this, what would you do?" That was all he said, but that was enough. The jury was startled and some even quailed in their seats. The judge moved uneasily on his bench. After fifteen minutes the jury filed slowly back with a "Not guilty, your honor." The victory was complete. When Clay was congratulated on his easy victory he said: "It was not so easy as you think. I spent days and days in my room before the mirror practicing that look. It took more hard work to give that look than to investigate the most obscure case."

Democracy Again Scuttled.
Have the Democrats again scuttled and left their paramount issue to be defeated by others? It begins to look that way. In 1900 the Democratic National Convention declared "the burning issue of imperialism, growing out of the Spanish war, involving the very existence of the Republic and the destruction of our free institutions we regard as the paramount issue of the campaign." All through the long session of Congress, from December to July last, the Democratic Senators discussed little else than this paramount issue. It mattered not what proposed legislation was before the Senate, Carmack and Teller, and Culbertson and Rawlins, Patterson and Tillman and other Democratic leaders, harked back to the paramount issue and belabored the administration for destroying our free institutions and converting the Republic of Washington and Jefferson into an Empire with militarism for its chief corner stone. The Congressional Record in thousands of pages bears testimony to the ardent industry of the Democratic Senators and Representatives in the cause of anti-imperialism. The Democratic Campaign Book issued in August also bears testimony that the Democratic party was even at that late date, loyal to their last national platform, for more than 100 pages of that Democratic Bible are given to the discussion of imperialism. But since then something has happened. The Democrats have again scuttled and left their paramount issue as they did in 1896 when they turned their backs on Cleveland's free trade record and began to cry free silver, and in 1900 when they tried to free silver for anti-imperialism. The Democratic orators have flunked on the paramount issue and left it to the defense of that little band of professional mugwumps headed by Charles Francis Adams and Carl Schurz. These chronic malcontents are doing what they can to save the Republic and prevent the crowning of Roosevelt as Emperor, but they have so long been engaged in saving the country from imaginary ills that they are no longer taken seriously even by their friends. But the Democratic orators are silent. They have scuttled from imperialism as though it were an infectious or contagious disease. They have discovered that there are American soldiers in every part of the country who have been in the Philippines or in Cuba or Porto Rico and that these soldiers have a very direct and even abrupt way of meeting this paramount issue. This issue rests on malicious slander of the army and the men who have been connected with the army are ready to resent that slander. They are no longer soldiers but they are citizens, defenders of the honor of the army and the flag even more zealous of what they fought for than when they fighting. And what is more to the point, the men who were soldiers have the confidence of their neighbors and the general public so that their direct contributions are enough to overthrow any inflammatory statements of professional orators or professional reformers. Still it is sad to see the Democrats scuttling from their latest issue as they urged the government to scuttle from the Philippines. The party should change its name to that of Scuttle and Skeddaddle.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
Saved His Boy's Life.
"I believe I saved my (nine year old) boy's life this winter with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says A. M. Hoppe, Rio Creek, Wis. "He was so choked up with croup that he could not speak. I gave it to him freely until he vomited and in a short time he was all right." For sale by all druggists.

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

Are Never Without Peruna in the House for Catarrh, Coughs and Colds.

MR. AND MRS. PETER HOFFMAN, KYLERTOWN, PA.

Mr. Peter Hoffman, Kylertown, Pa., writes: "I was deaf for five years and could not hear. I was completely deaf, was afflicted with shortness of breath, proctitis, trouble in the throat, so that I was in misery. Through one of Dr. Hartman's assistants I decided to try Peruna, and bought a bottle. 'I took three bottles and now feel well, my hearing is good again; I can breathe without difficulty; my throat is no longer inflamed. I followed all the directions, and can now say that Dr. Hartman's Peruna has cured me.' 'I recommend it to all suffering with catarrh. I am seventy-one years old, have an appetite again and can work. I feel ten years younger.' 'When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people. This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people. Peruna is their safeguard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that meets these cases exactly. Such cases cannot be treated locally, nothing but an effective systemic remedy could cure them. This is exactly what Peruna is.'"

Mr. Robert Metters, of Murdoch, Base Co., Neb., Box 45, writes: "I had catarrh from my head all through my system. I took Peruna until I was entirely cured. I am eighty-three and a half years old, and feel as young as I did ten years ago." "I visited recently among some old friends, who said I looked as young as I did twenty years ago." —Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for a free catarrh book.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

Young Woman Dead Under Suspicious Circumstances.

Morgantown, Ky., Oct. 6.—A mysterious death occurred near Morgantown, about fifteen miles from here. A young girl, 19 years old by the name of Cordia Kirby, is reported to have taken a large quantity of strychnine on yesterday evening and only lived about 45 minutes. This is the report given by the McCoy family with whom she was staying. No cause was assigned for the suicide, if it is suicide, but the neighbors suspect foul play, as she visited a neighbor about an hour before she died and was in high spirits. The McCoy family say that she acknowledged taking the strychnine, but there is mystery about the whole case, and may develop something sensational.

ATTENTION! G. A. R.

The same route you traveled in '61; but a vastly improved road will carry you to Washington in 1902. Washington the most appropriate city for a reunion of the G. A. R.

How many of the grizzled and gray-haired veterans will be able to answer the bugle call to the Nation's Capital and once more pass in grand review down Pennsylvania Avenue? How many, alas, there, who, since the last encampment of Washington ten years ago, have been borne to their last haven with muffled drums and laid to rest under the Stars and Stripes, while the bugle sounded taps!

Once more, and probably for the last time comes the call: "On to Washington." The beautiful city extends the invitation at a reasonable time—October—when the harvesting is done and the days are cool and crisp.

The call will be responded to with unusual energy by every veteran who can possible travel. What memories will be revived, what stirring scenes recalled, when their journey is via the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad—the same old "B. & O." But it will be an easier journey now than then, and it would be a harder task for the "Johnnies" to make "neckties" out of the heavy 85-lb steel rails than it was in '61, to prevent the "Yankees" from getting together. The B. & O. Station is just one block from the "Capitol" and other public buildings and all hotels can be reached within a few minutes time.

Low rates will be made from all points on B. & O. S-W. Be sure

ANNOUNCEMENTS.
For Circuit Judge.
We are authorized to announce W. T. OWEN, of Barren county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge in the Sixth Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

It is reported that King Leopold of Belgium will soon abdicate the throne in favor of his nephew, Prince Albert, son of the King's brother, the count of Flanders. King Leopold is sixty-seven years old and his age, together with the loss of his estimable wife a few days ago, are assigned as the causes of his abdication.

To other than Frenchmen, the spectacle of Dreyfus marching meekly behind the bar of his great friend and benefactor, M. Zola, was an inspiring scene. The press dispatches say that his countrymen scarcely noticed the presence of Dreyfus. How difficult it is for men to forgive one whom they have wronged.

If the Herald will indulge us just one comment upon the Democratic primary, we should like to ask why Mr. Beu D. Ringo, candidate for the nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney, should be required to put up $475 to help defray the expenses of the primary when he has no opposition? Why should not the committee declare his nomination and save him this money? If the Democrats want to shear their own flock, they have the privilege of doing so, but the justice of shearing Mr. Ringo does not appear to one not up on Democratic politics.

Prof. John Burke, a distinguished educator of Newport, is instructor at the Institute this week, and his work has been very satisfactory to that body. The Republican State convention at Lexington in 1899, recognized Prof. Burke's ability as an educator when it gave him its nomination for Superintendent of Public Instruction and the voters of the State recognized his ability for school work, when they elected him to that office, and a Democratic Legislature recognized the principle of pillage and plunder when it stole the office from him.

In a speech at Hopkinsville Monday, John K. Hendrick, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, said that Beckham was ineligible, and that if nominated and elected, it would mean another contest and that the nominees of the Democratic body-politic are not able to withstand another contest. In plain English, Mr. Hendrick meant that if Beckham was elected his election would be at the sacrifice of another steal, and that the Democratic party was not strong enough in Kentucky to survive another steal of the governorship. A frank statement, but a true one.

The Fiscal Court convenes here next Tuesday, and those citizens of the county who know the value of good roads and want them built, should call on this court while it is in session and urge its members to take some action looking to that end. The court will naturally hesitate to venture upon a new departure along this line without first knowing that the more enterprising farmers and business men are behind it. We sincerely believe that our progressive citizens favor a new and better system of road-making, and if a considerable number of them will call on the court in person and urge it to act, that good results will follow. The members of the Fiscal Court are sensible and reasonable men, and are willing, we believe, to undertake any public improvement within the limits of the county's revenues, if the people demand it.

The strike of the anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania is rapidly becoming, if indeed it is not already, the most alarming incident that ever occurred in industrial circles in the history of the country. The hard coal miners of Pennsylvania have been on a strike since May and a coal famine is in sight for the North and East. The situation became so grave that the President has held several cabinet meetings to discuss it, but without tangible results. The strike continues without prospect of immediate settlement, but if it were settled now, and the miners returned to work at once, the hardships and suffering this winter in those cities dependent for fuel upon the Pennsylvania coal fields must far exceed any similar calamity that ever befell the people of this country. It is already freely predicted that coal riots will occur this winter in the Eastern cities, and that it will take a dozen policemen to deliver a cart load of coal in the poor districts. But terrible as the result must be, some good will result from it. It will awaken the public to the necessity of forcing some legislation to adjust these oft recurring disputes between operators and the labor unions in which the public welfare is so vitally interested.

W. BRYAN, well known to the American people as a stumpster, will begin stumping Nebraska for the future ticket of that State to-day. Judging from results of Mr. Bryan's former stumping, the election of the Republican ticket in Nebraska is pretty sure.

THE National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is holding its 30th annual reunion at Washington this week. More than thirty-seven years have elapsed since the defining din of that deadly conflict died from echoes into silence, and when it is remembered that the most youthful soldier must have then lived a score of years, the youngest comrade in the line of march at the Capital City, must be bent with the weight of years. There are no young men there. The blast of many winters have blown chrysalis frosts into their hair, and three score years and more have marked their faces with deepening lines, yet, year after year, the undaunted braves meet to rekindle their campfires, and for a few brief hours, live again amid the martial scenes of the long ago. But each succeeding year finds the ranks broken and there by a stronger hand than man. Each year, aye, each day, veterans, gallant and brave, whose hearts never quailed before the furious engines of death on the gory fields of war, answer meekly to the celestial roll call to duty. The time is not far distant when the last veteran of that dreadful conflict must answer to the summons of that Great Commander whose voice the spheres obey. But while the remnant of that once mighty and invincible army is with us, we should spare no effort to do them honor, because they made possible the existence of the mightiest imperial Republic the world ever saw. All honor to the peaceful warriors now in conclave at the National Capital.

SAFE BLOWERS
Crack Two Safes at Calhoun and Get Only a Hundred Pennies.

Wednesday morning about two o'clock burglars entered the post-office at Calhoun and blew open the office safe with nitro-glycerine, but secured only a hundred pennies for their pains. The postmaster frequently leaves small sums of money in his safe at night, but fortunately Tuesday evening he took his money to the house. The robbers were evidently amateurs for they left more than a hundred dollars worth of stamps untouched.

Defeated in their efforts to secure money at the post-office, the safe-crackers went to Reeves' store, effecting an entrance by way of a rear window, and proceeded to blow the safe there.

The noise made by the cracking of the store safe awakened some parties sleeping near by and the town was at once alarmed. A searching party, headed by the sheriff and town marshal, was at once organized and set about the pursuit of the burglars.

At 3 o'clock Wednesday morning Sheriff Cal P. Keown, who has made something of a reputation as a capturer of safe blowers, was telephoned for. Sheriff Keown, owing to certain business engagements, was unable to go to the scene of the burglary, but telephoned to Dundee for bloodhounds which passed through here at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning in charge of Mr. J. N. Cole, en route to Calhoun.

Mr. D. H. Poole, formerly with the Ohio Valley Produce Co., has been made assistant cashier of the Green River Deposit Bank at Rochester.

Cutting Affray at Rockport.
Rockport, Ky., Oct. 9.—Last Monday Herbert and Cleburn Baker, of this place, boarded train No. 121 for a short trip south of here. Herbert purchased a ticket for Nortonville and was going from there to Lenton, Ind., while Cleburn was going to change cars at Princeton, where he was going to work under bridge foreman, A. M. Harrel, on the O. V. R. Both Herbert and Cleburn were drinking. Bridge foreman Harrel was on the same train with a pass for his gang. Cleburn was included in the pass. While the train was between here and Nelson station, conductor H. V. Hansbrow came to Cleburn for his pass and they got up a little dispute over the pass. Cleburn Baker and the conductor exchanged a few words and got to fighting. Barker reported that the conductor drew a revolver on him, and he stepped behind a bystander and dodged around and knocked the gun out of his hand.

By this time the porter interfered and Herbert Baker interceded and cut the porter very bad, so that he had to stop off at Central City. The Barker boys returned to Rockport on the next train, very bloody and looked as though they were badly hurt, but they were not.

The Baker boys have not been arrested, but officers are after them.

$100 Reward, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. BY SPECIAL REQUEST

Dr. G. Goldstein, of Louisville, who is known by the people of Hartford and vicinity, will arrive here in a few days and will remain only a short time and will fit glasses to the eyes of all who need them.

He has made the study of optics a specialty, and any one in need of glasses cannot do better than give him a call. Parents of children whose eyes are in any way affected, should take them to Dr. Goldstein and have them examined. Too much care cannot be taken in this particular, as any neglect on the part of the parents may lead to most serious consequences in after life. If the eyes of the child need glasses the Doctor can determine it and adjust such glasses as will be most apt to preserve and increase their strength. The Doctor has been giving satisfaction for many years, and we recommend him as worthy the patronage of the public. Those suffering with their eyes should call on him and if he doesn't give relief it will not cost them anything. He can adjust to any eyes and any age. A good glass rightly adjusted is a luxury to a person with failing sight they can ill afford to do without. A glass imperfectly adjusted is worse than no glass. Office hours from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Some Coffees are Glazed with a cheap coating. If glazing helps coffee why aren't the high-priced Mochas and Javas glazed also?

Billiousness
Makes
Chronic Invalids.
When the liver is torpid, and fails to do its work, the bile enters the blood as a violent poison. (Then comes constipation, biliousness, sick headache, fever and malaria.) The only treatment that gives the liver just the right impulse and starts Nature's work in the right direction is
RAMON'S LIVER PILLS AND TONIC PELLETS
The pills touch the liver, and the pellets soothe the system.
25 doses for 3 days over 25 cents, and unless your case is exceedingly bad, you will be well before you finish them.
Sample free. For sale at all druggists.

FRIENDSHIP CHURCH.

Mrs. M. F. Royal and sons visited Mrs. Grinda Royal Sunday.

Mr. Isaac Westerfield and family spend Lord's Day at Mr. Ara Crowley's.

Born, to the wife of Mr. Henry Brown, September 20, a girl.

Mrs. Venie Westerfield and two children, Owensboro, are visiting relatives here this week.

Elder Robt. J. Brandon went to Owensboro last Thursday.

Died, Mr. Allison Royal, September 15. His remains were interred in the cemetery at this place, the 16th. He leaves a wife, six children, mother, brothers and sister to mourn his departure.

Died, September 21, Mr. Iva Edge. His remains were interred the 22nd at Sugar Grove cemetery. He leaves a wife, one child, mother, brothers and sister to mourn his loss. We extend condolence to the bereaved families.

Any druggist who looks more to the health and welfare of his friends and customers than to the increase of his prescription trade, will recommend Ramon's Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets for attacks of constipation and biliousness. They are far better than strong drugs and much cheaper than prescription pills. G. C. McClure & Son, the leading druggists of Gallipolis, Ky., write: "Ramon's Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets have proved to be the most popular and satisfactory medicine we ever handled." A trial will convince you of their great superiority over ordinary liver pills. 25 cts. J. H. Williams.

Knew His Habit.
"Becky, I hear talk among the church folks that they are bent on makin' me a deacon at the yearly meetin', come Thursday."

"They'd better postpone it a spell Abner."

"What makes you think so, Becky?"

"Cause Abner, you know you've got to put up the stove next week."

—Washington Star.

When you wake up with a bad taste in your mouth, go at once to all druggists drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One or two doses will make you well. They also cure biliousness, sick headache and constipation.

The class in Bookkeeping was organized Monday.

The Fair.
Except for the heavy rains Thursday and Friday, the Ohio County Fair was the biggest thing of the kind ever held in the county. Saturday was a day not soon to be forgotten by the fair-going people of Ohio county. The day was bright and beautiful, and despite the muddy condition of the roads, a multitude of people came in Saturday.
Capt. S. K. Cox is chief manager for the Fair Company and he was everywhere at once, making life pleasant for everybody.
Throughout the whole fair the best of order was maintained and everybody had a nice time. Encouraged by the generous encouragement, under bad weather conditions this year, the Ohio County Fair Company will give the greatest fair in its history next year.

Our Teachers.
The teachers in the Institute, in session this week, form an interesting spectacle of young manhood and womanhood. The ladies, teachers by their very occupation, are characters of industry, neatness and virtue, and the young men are model of honesty, energy and sobriety. No other vocation in life calls for such high standards of morals and worth as that of the teacher. No young lady about whose reputation for neatness or virtue, there had been a whisper, could obtain either a certificate or a school, nor could a man whose honor or sobriety had been called in question. It is from observation of practical results, rather than from local pride, that we say Ohio county has the most efficient teachers of any county in Western Kentucky, and if nobody will tell our wife, we will observe that the lady teachers are the prettiest in Kentucky.

Scott's Emulsion is the means of life and of the enjoyment of life of thousands of men, women and children.
To the men Scott's Emulsion gives the flesh and strength so necessary for the cure of consumption and the repairing of body losses from any wasting disease.
For women Scott's Emulsion does this and more. It is a most sustaining food and tonic for the special trials that women have to bear.
To children Scott's Emulsion gives food and strength for growth of flesh and bone and blood. For pale girls, for thin and sickly boys Scott's Emulsion is a great help.
Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409-415 Pearl Street, New York. 50c, and $1.00 all druggists.

OUR VOTING CONTEST.

Count Will Begin at One O'clock To-morrow—Prizes Awarded an Hour Later.

At 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon our voting contest will close. At that hour some gentleman teacher will have won a $75 buggy, and some lady teacher a $20 gold watch, and an hour later the awards of prizes will be made. We will continue to receive subscriptions, but no votes will be received after the hour mentioned. The ballot box will be opened at 1 o'clock and Messrs. Claude Smith, Cal P. Keown and the editor of this paper will make the count. The counting will not consume more than an hour, and as soon as it is closed the buggy and watch will be presented to the lucky winners.

THE REPUBLICAN, almost from its organization, has been closely identified with the interest of the teachers of the county. Two of its former editors have been at the same time editor of this paper and Superintendent of schools, and we hope we do the present efficient Superintendent no injustice by saying that he is our deputy editor. In turn the teachers have liberally supported the paper, and for these reasons we offered these, the most valuable prizes ever given away by a newspaper in Ohio county, exclusively to the teachers of our county schools.

We shall, next week, produce the pictures, together with a short biography of the winners.

Teachers' Institute.

The Ohio County Teachers' Institute convened in Court house Tuesday morning. Superintendent James DeWeese presiding, with Prof. J. M. Matheny Vice President and Prof. A. S. Tanner, Secretary. One hundred and twenty-two teachers are enrolled as follows:

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. "I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving such a fair trial, but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." E. BROWN, FORDS, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

P. WHITTAKER

A Character Familiar to the Prison Officials of Ohio and Davless counties in Trouble Again.

P. Whittaker, a rather tough character, living near Pleasant Ridge, and who has been up against every sort of a charge from horse stealing to murder, is in the Owensboro jail, under charge of robbing a fellow drunkard of $2, in that city several days ago.

When a boy "P." fell into the habit of reading life's signboards wrong, and has been going wrong ever since. Several years ago he stabbed to death, a man by the name of Smith, at Whitesville, for which he was given a sentence of seven years in State prison, but through the intervention of an influential relative, he was pardoned after serving about two years. He then returned to his old haunts and again pursued his criminal instincts.

Given more to drink than to love of work, Whittaker had a tact for getting money, not always understood by parties from whom he got it. There is a certain tact for open frankness about the midget that has saved him many a prosecution.

Sometime ago we said that among several hundred prisoners visited in the Ohio county jail, we had never seen but one who was guilty. We meant, of course, only one who acknowledged himself guilty, and Whittaker was the party referred to.

Whittaker had a habit of frankly admitting his crimes, which frequently won for him a sort of sympathy from those who knew his real character.

We can not venture an opinion as to the outcome of Whittaker's latest adventure, but we think society would be more secure if he were locked up indefinitely.

Stock Dying in Grayson.

The great number of cattle, sheep and other stock dying of anthrax in Grayson county in the past two weeks has attracted attention all over the State.

At a meeting of the State Board of Health at the Galt House, in Louisville Tuesday night, the subject was taken up and thoroughly discussed. County Attorney J. C. Graham, of Grayson county, was present and advised the Board in regard to the situation there. Steps will be taken immediately to prevent the spread of the disease, which is a very contagious. The disease spreads rapidly and is usually fatal. It is not infrequently attacks men, among whom it is more fatal than with stock. The remedy is in inoculation of the healthy stock in the community where the disease appears and a strict quarantine against infected districts.

A meeting of the Fiscal Court of Grayson county has already been called to discuss the matter and the county authorities will heartily cooperate with the State authorities in stamping out the dreaded disease.

Democratic Judicial Committee Calls for More Money.

The Democratic judicial district committee held a special meeting in this city this afternoon. Those in attendance were T. A. Pedley, of Owensboro; C. A. Payne, of Davless county; T. J. Smith, of Ohio county; Edward E. Kelly, of Hancock county, and Dr. W. P. Miller, of McLean county.

The object of the meeting was to provide money for holding the judicial primary. The candidates for judge were raised $150 each, making their total assessment $750 each. The candidate for commonwealth's attorney had his ante raised $75, so that his assessment is now $475.

Jas. R. Coppage Dead.

Mr. Jas. R. Coppage, of near town, died at the asylum at Hopkinsville Sunday and was buried at the Browns burying ground, four miles north of town, Tuesday. Mr. Coppage was seventy years old and had been in feeble health for some time. About three weeks ago his mind became unbalanced and growing feeble, in both mind and body, the family decided to send him to the asylum for the insane, which was done Saturday, where he died twenty-six hours after his arrival. The family ordered his body sent home for burial.

Upon the arrival of the body at Beaver Dam a heavily bruised place just over the right eye was discovered and some of the Beaver Dam physicians were called upon to examine the wound and determine, if possible, the cause of it. The Beaver Dam physicians were unable to determine what caused the bruise was attributed to the fact that the body was brought to Hartford for examination by the physicians here, which was done.

When the corpse arrived here Dr. Ford and Miller examined the wound carefully, but were unable to determine the cause of it.

The existence of the wound, together with the death following so closely upon his arrival at the asylum, gave the family grave anxiety, but the mystery is yet unsolved.

THE FRUIT OF THE ROSEBUSH
 ...By Howard Fielding
 Copyright, 1901, by Charles W. Beale

There reclined in a seat of the smoking car a young man in a soiled and dusty gray suit and a white "newater" stained with machine oil. His head was in a corner, and his eyes were over one eye. The conductor, coming through the train for fares, gently shook this passenger, thereby tilting his head forward so that he snored loudly. A sympathetic movement of the young man's hand revealed a ticket there, which proved upon inspection to be satisfactory.

In the next seat rearward were two men who glanced at the conductor and nodded familiarly. The elder of them had high shoulders, rather too heavy for the rest of his figure; a long face and a prominent nose, slightly red at the end. He also had a fat hand, which was always ponderously busy when he talked.

"You don't show up with the money, do you understand?" said he.

The person thus addressed was a thin man with a nose like an ax. He carried his head back on his neck and snored with his nervous hands.

"I had made up my mind that I wouldn't spend the money," said he. "I had intended to let Uncle Amos know today that he must not depend upon me."

"Next week will do just as well," was the rejoinder. "I mean what I say, Harry."

"It will put Uncle Amos in a hole," said Harry. "He won't be able to turn himself. You'll foreclose your mortgage, and in the end you'll have the farm."

"Uncle Amos Lawrence won't move to you then, Harry," said the other. "That's all you've got to consider. Can you get anything politically without me?"

"Frankly, Mr. Beckley," said Harry, "I don't believe I can run any other man in this district."

"Lawrence came out against me last fall," said Beckley. "He found fault with my man."

Harry snickered grimly. Then he assumed suddenly the professional manner of the lawyer.

"You want me to let him think he's going to get that loan of me until it's too late for him to rule the money anywhere else," he said in a short, crisp tone, scarcely above a whisper.

"Very well. It's dirty work, but I'll do it."

"I thought so," said Beckley. And the fat hand came to rest upon his knee.

Uncle Amos Lawrence sat on the well curbed filling his pipe after supper when a young man in a dusty gray suit approached him and asked the "good evening," said he, halting with one foot on the edge of the platform around the well. "I wonder if you could spare me a drink of water?"

"Our well's thirty-five foot deep, and it's nearly full," said the farmer. "How much do you hold?"

"I'm dug out pretty thin," answered the young man, "and I haven't had dinner yet."

"No dinner yet?" echoed Uncle Amos, with evident concern. "Notin' sense breakfast? Dear me! I'll be footin' it for you."

"Not a great way," was the reply. "My machine broke down."

"Oh, you're a bicycle rider," said Uncle Amos, "off on a tower. Vacation, I suppose? The young man nodded.

"Well," said the farmer, "go into the house, an' mother'll give you a bite to eat."

"Lawrence came out against me last fall," said Beckley. "He found fault with my man."

et. I don't think the dish was cleared away yet. Here, Dolly," he continued, addressing a pretty girl of eight or nine years who came running with matches for her father. "Ask your mother if she's got any supper left. You go right along with her, Mr. 'Norton,'" said the young man. "Frank Norton is my name. But as to the supper, I intended to eat at the house."

ted in the village. However, if you'll let me lay my supper here."

"Twout cost you nothing," said Uncle Amos. "Glad to get the stuff out up. Dolly'll take you in."

Dolly eyed the stranger shyly, he returning the glance with admiration of the pretty child, upon whose face and tangle of bright hair the last ray from the west struck for a faintly warm. The young man extended his hand, and Dolly, after brief hesitation, laid her own in it and led him toward the house.

"This is a pretty country," said he. "Don't you think so?"

"Oh, yes," she said. "This is fine, specially in summer, of course. See my roses there? They're almost gone, but I had a lot. Mother and I planted the bushes when we first came here. I'm always going to have them."

"Always going to have them?" repeated the young man.

"Of course I'll go away by and by to school," said Dolly. "Father has promised me. But that won't be yet awhile. It's a good many years."

"The years?" said the young man. "I hope they'll be good years, all of them, for you and the roses."

So they went into the house together, and when Norton came out again, half an hour later, Uncle Amos from his seat by the well observed with pleasure that the guest of the evening was loosening the buckle of his belt.

Norton lit a cigar and stood erect, alert, receptive.

"This looks like a fine bit of land," said he, looking across the fields, whitened by the moonlight.

"A mighty sight better than it was when I took hold of it. I've worked, and I guess you wouldn't understand that. Your trade will be something in the mechanical line, I should judge—engineer or the like of that?"

"Yes," said Norton. "I'm an engineer."

He paused, glancing toward the house, where, in the lighted doorway, the motherly form of Mrs. Lawrence appeared with Dolly beside her. The little girl advanced timidly along the path toward the well. She paused at six paces distance and seemed to hesitate.

"Well, little one?" queried Uncle Amos.

"Mother told me I could come out to say good night," she said.

"Come along, then," said her father, extending his arms.

But the child did not move, except to raise one hand to her round little throat as if her collar had been too tight. Then she suddenly shrieked, "Good night, Mr. Norton!" and fled into the house so fast that it seemed the young man's answering "good night" could hardly overtake her.

"You were going to say something about the farm," said Uncle Amos after an interval of silence.

"The farm is all right," replied Norton slowly. "It is surely all right. But I must be going to the village. Country boys close early."

"You ain't goin' to no hotel this night," said Uncle Amos. "We can put you up without a bit of trouble."

The young man held his chin in his hand for a matter of ten seconds.

"It is very kind of you," he said. "I will be glad to stay."

"This is wholly unexpected," Mr. Lawrence, said Lawyer Beckley. "I had no reason to doubt my ability to take up this mortgage for you and its things all right, but there have been demands upon me that I could not ruin me. Everybody's afraid."

"I'll be glad to stay," said the lawyer. "I don't believe Beckley will press you."

Uncle Amos looked at him steadily.

"You don't believe Beckley'll press me?" said the farmer, with almost painful elevation of attention.

"You're a darn law," in my opinion you've never been anything else from first to last of this business."

He picked up his hat from the floor and walked out of the office.

The worst part of trouble is taking it home, especially when one has decided that it would better not be mentioned. When Uncle Amos was met by Dolly the next day, she was in a state of great excitement.

"You're a darn law," in my opinion you've never been anything else from first to last of this business."

morin'. But there was no nothing."

A broad and handsome young man in a suit of the best, yet not too fine, gave cheerful greeting to a blue uniformed boy who opened the door for him.

"There's somebody waiting for you, sir," said the boy, indicating by a wave of his hand the reception room, which was at the right of the private office.

"He said it was a personal matter," the man here before we opened up, in the hall outside. His name's Lawrence."

"Thunder!" said the young man, and for a moment he looked like one who can't quite face the situation. Then he shook himself together and walked into the reception room, where Uncle Amos Lawrence had been pacing up and down for an hour.

He turned hastily, yet still, hearing footsteps. Norton, entering the room, flung out both hands as one who wards off an attack.

"Now, don't say a word!" he cried. "You got my letter! All right. It's a trial. You see, I couldn't let any such deal as that go through; I really couldn't. I heard Beckley and Harry talking in the train; made 'em think I was asleep. Then I asked a few questions when I got to your village. Finding that you were all right, a square man and a good man every way, I went up to your place to put you on your guard. Then I saw the little girl and the roses. Well, you understand. I made up my mind to fix the thing myself. But I couldn't quite bring myself to say so. I'm hesitant, that's what's the trouble with me. I can't talk without a cent. On a matter like that I'd rather wait and send a check."

From the deep seat of Uncle Amos' thoughts and emotions one trivial matter found its way to the surface.

"I thought you said you were an engineer," he snarled.

"So I am," replied Norton. "I can run anything that has wheels, except my own head sometimes. I'd been running an engine up through your region—an automobile, you know. When I said it wasn't quite right, I meant a bicycle, and I didn't take the trouble to correct you because automobiles mean money, and I wasn't quite decided about mentioning the fact that I had any.
